“Spook” means Spook Limited. “Directors” means the two Spook founding directors: Martin Luck and Andrew des’ Ascoyne.

Each policy will be reviewed annually and sooner where changes in legislation, business activities or identified risks require it.

01 Purpose

Spook is committed to preventing slavery, servitude, forced or compulsory labour and human trafficking in its operations and business relationships.

Spook will take proportionate steps to identify risks, respond to concerns and avoid contributing to exploitation.

02 Scope

This policy applies to directors, employees and workers and informs the selection and management of suppliers, contractors, recruitment providers and other business partners.

Relevant supply chains may include technology equipment, hosting, outsourced services and labour provision.

03 Responsibilities

Directors will oversee risk assessment, supplier expectations, investigations and corrective action.

Those responsible for recruitment or procurement must consider exploitation risks and escalate warning signs.

Everyone covered by this policy must report suspected exploitation and must not knowingly support or conceal it.

04 Employment and recruitment standards

Work must be freely chosen. Workers must receive clear terms and be free to leave employment subject to lawful contractual notice requirements.

Spook will comply with applicable pay, working-time and employment requirements.

Spook will not withhold identity documents, restrict workers' lawful movement or require deposits as a condition of employment.

Workers must not be charged recruitment fees to obtain work with Spook.

Recruitment providers must be informed of this requirement, and concerns about fees or coercion must be investigated.

Identity and right-to-work checks must be conducted lawfully and respectfully. Child labour and the exploitation of young workers are prohibited.

05 Supply-chain checks

Spook will assess suppliers proportionately, considering the nature of their work, location, labour arrangements and supply-chain visibility.

Higher-risk relationships may require additional questions, supporting evidence, contractual safeguards or further investigation.

Relevant agreements should require suppliers to prohibit modern slavery, cooperate with reasonable enquiries and report material concerns. A supplier's policy or statement alone will not be treated as conclusive evidence that no exploitation occurs.

Warning signs may include unexplained labour charges, withheld documents or wages, restrictions on movement, coercive recruitment practices or workers appearing controlled by another person.

06 Reporting and responding to concerns

Suspected exploitation must be reported promptly to a director where there is a conflict. Anyone in immediate danger should receive emergency assistance.

Employees must not confront suspected perpetrators or conduct their own investigation where doing so could place anyone at risk.

Spook will assess concerns sensitively, preserve relevant information and seek appropriate specialist or law-enforcement assistance. The safety and welfare of potentially affected workers will be central to the response.

07 Remediation and business relationships

Where concerns are substantiated, Spook will determine appropriate action, which may include corrective measures, support for affected workers, suspension of activity or termination of the relationship.

Decisions will consider the seriousness of the issue, the partner's willingness and ability to remedy it, and the risk that an abrupt withdrawal could cause further harm.

Retaliation against anyone raising a genuine concern or assisting an investigation is prohibited.

08 Records, reporting and review

Spook will retain proportionate records of risk assessments, supplier checks, training, concerns and corrective action, with appropriate protection for personal information.

Directors will review the effectiveness of this policy annually and determine whether Spook is required to publish an annual statement under section 54 of the Modern Slavery Act 2015.

This policy does not replace any required annual statement. Where a statement is required or published voluntarily, it must accurately describe the relevant financial year, the steps actually taken and the applicable approval and publication arrangements.
